Staten Island University Hospital offers residency training in a modern and well-equipped medical facility with a diverse patient population and a high-quality teaching staff. Our institution is located in the desirable, suburban community with excellent schools and recreational facilities within 30 minutes of New York City, the world's cultural center. Staten Island University Hospital has over 40,000 admissions annually and nearly 100,000 ambulatory visits to the Emergency Department and over 200,000 ambulatory visits.

Staten Island University Hospital has it all: world-class health care right where you need it. Our campuses offer the leading-edge medical care you'd expect from a major metropolitan hospital with a unique, community-based atmosphere.

What began as a one-room infirmary more than 150 years ago has grown to become a 714-bed teaching hospital that spans two campuses, providing a vast array of services in health and wellness. Our 17-acre North campus houses Staten Island's most modern emergency department, a state-of-the-art education center, and a medical arts pavilion. Our South campus boasts its own emergency department and offers a range of specialty programs, including geriatric psychiatry, behavioral health and substance abuse services.

As healthcare options in this country grow, we lead the charge with highly specialized units including:

The Heart Institute
The Institute for Cancer and Blood-Related Diseases
The Regional Burn Center
The Comprehensive Breast Cancer Center
The Center for Bariatric Surgery
The Institute of Sleep Medicine
The Level III Perinatal Center
The New York Head & Neck Institute
The Stroke Center

As part of the Northwell Health network of providers, Staten Island University Hospital has access to the wealth of resources and services of New York's largest health system, while remaining firmly entrenched and engaged in our local community. Our team takes great pride in the work we do to teach and train as we seek out new and better ways to prevent and treat disease. And we never forget that our first commitment is to you - the individuals whose lives we touch each day.
