We are never too seasoned to learn something new. Our new academic year has begun and our coordinators are embarking on bigger and better adventures. First, the RPCF Newsletter editors want to thank you for your support and we are looking forward to building a stronger team with you at our side. This year the newsletter will be focusing on empowering and encouraging our coordinators to make a commitment to yourself. Stepping out of our comfort zone to achieve and improve yourself by at least 10%. This improvement can be academic, personal and/or social. Being 10% better will be a start; so please join us as we move towards brighter futures.

The Newsletter is pleased to report that through the effort and determination of some of our fellow coordinators; a presentation was conducted at the Hospital Medical Executive Committee Meeting asking for partial funding of a joint venture health fair, to be held in September 2022. The committee not only approved our request, but they also agreed to fund the entire venture. This is a huge accomplishment for our Program Coordinators. Let us celebrate our wins however big or small. Sharing our victories and aspirations will guide us one step closer to our goals. Together we can accomplish anything. Just remember, participation and socialization will be a key part to our success.

"Have an Idea," Let us know how we can help you make it a reality. The future awaits and we look forward to hear from you.

PRODUCTIVITY TIPS

ARE YOU UTILIZING MICROSOFT OUTLOOK TO THE BEST OF YOUR ABILITY?

SEND LATER
When sending an email outside of your business hours, use the send later option (Down arrow next to send). This allows you to send emails for a specific date and time, at any time.

SNOOZE
Working on a project? Awaiting a response? Need to remember to follow up on an email? Snooze the email to pop back up into your email box at a specific date and time. This will help you to never miss a beat.

FOLDERS
Create folders to add specific emails to and keep your email box organized. For example, you can create an intern's folder and add all the email you send to the interns every year to use and have easily ready for the next year.

TEMPLATES
Find yourself typing the same email over and over. Utilize the template feature, create the email and before you send it, save it as a template. The next time you have to send that email you can easily click on the three horizontal dots (ellipses) and click on my templates and insert the template.

Present at the ACGME Annual Educational Conference!

Members of the GME community are invited to submit proposals for two full-day courses and concurrent sessions at the conference. Sessions can be on a variety of topics; those for concurrent conference sessions should be relevant to the GME community at large and those for the full-day courses relevant to coordinators or those involved in Osteopathic Recognition.

Submit a Session Proposal Today!

The ACGME announces the Call for Sessions for the 2023 Annual Educational Conference, to be held at the Gaylord Opryland Resort and Convention Center in Nashville, Tennessee February 23–25, 2023. Session proposals are being accepted for the ACGME/AOGME Osteopathic Recognition Full-Day Course until Monday, August 1, 2022 at 11:59 p.m. Central. Session proposals are being accepted for the Annual Educational Conference and Coordinator Forum Full-Day Course until Friday, August 5, 2022 at 5:00 p.m. Central.

Submit session proposals to one Call only. Coordinator-specific content should be submitted for the Coordinator Forum full-day course; Osteopathic Recognition-specific content should be submitted for the ACGME/AOGME Osteopathic Recognition Full-Day Course; content applicable to all members of the graduate medical education (GME) community should be submitted for the Annual Educational Conference.
