

How to Become an Investigator Series

The “How to Become an Investigator” Series, sponsored by the Office of the Senior Vice President of Research, will feature conversations led by senior faculty to share their career trajectory, their research area and why they chose that area, strategies for obtaining funding, and general tips for success in academic health sciences research. We plan to host five sessions every year (virtually until in-person sessions are again feasible). Discussions will be tailored to target junior faculty, postdocs, and fellows, but will be open to residents, students, and all members of the Downstate community.

Duration: One hour

Format:

Faculty will talk for 10 minutes each about their career track, their research area and why they chose that area, and strategies for obtaining funding, followed by 30 minutes of open discussion and Q&A.
